RED LEADER'S DEATH STIRS

(AP Foreign Affairs analyst) Rarely does the death of an individual give rise to such widespread speculation regarding its possible effects as has that of Colonel General Andrei A. Zhdanov, one of Russia's big three and generally regarded as possible successor to Marshal Stalin as chief of state.

Zhdanov long had been a powerful figure in Communism, He had lived daringly and dangerously, projecting his dominating personality into national and international affairs until his voice had the ring of authority second only to that of the Generalissimo. He and Foreign Minister Molotov were supposedly the two from whom the new chief would be picked when Stalin stepped down.

However, like many other dynamic leaders he never had hesitated to they failed, might end his career. Mother Of Five Is Slain By Shotgun

Mt. Pleasant, Pa., Sept. 2 (A) State Policeman Harry Anderson today reported that a mother of five was found shot to death in her home and that a man who lived in her house was being held for ques-

Pvt. Anderson said the victim was Mrs. Sarah Betker, 48, whose right side had been torn away by a shotgun blast last night. He said Luther Hauser was taken into custody after he described the shooting as accidental.

Anderson quoted Hauser as telling this story: Hauser arrived at the woman's East Huntingdon township home last night and sat in the kitchen with a shotgun across his knee. As the woman moved an oil lamp while setting the table, Luther swung the gun and it discharged. Mrs. Betker fell to the floor.

World Council Of Churches Denounces Both Communism And Capitalism

HOLDS NEITHER IDEOLOGY CAN MEET WORLD'S GREATEST

By RICHARD TOMPKINS

Amsterdam, The Netherlands, Sept. 2 (P) - An advisory section of the World Council of Churches condemned both Communism and capitalism today. It said neither was an ideology capable of ensuring justice and freedom in the world.

The charges against both forms of society were made in a report drawn up by the section on "The Church and Disorder of Society." The report was submitted to a plenary session of the council today and leading members of the section said it will undergo only minor revisions.

The section is composed of 125 leading churchmen from among the 450 delegates representing about 150 churches in more than 40 nations. The group was headed by Dr. Constantijn Leopold Patijn of the Dutch Reformed church. It is one of four such working groups. The Roman Catholic church and the represented in the World Council. When you take your car to an Esso Dealer Station for gasoline, motor oil, or a complete lubrication job - you're not really "doing business" directly with Esso Standard Oil Company of Pennsylvania and affiliated companies, even though we make the fine products you get.

Instead, these 25,000 Esso Dealers from Maine to Louisiana are local, independent business men. You deal with the owners themselves - men who have invested their money and their initiative in building their own futures on serving you.

and oil, these local business men have chosen Esso products. Year after year, they have seen first-hand evidence of the satisfaction to the buyer that Esso quality stands for.

As of today, these able business men have, on the average, handled Esso products for 12 years each. Many have bought from us for 35 and 40 years.

Obviously, we couldn't do business without these men. And naturally we're proud of them - just as proud of them as we are of the 29,000 workers who are on Esso company

atheists are anxious to get on the radio and tell the people there is it? Should the government force neck. radio stations to let them do it? Those questions were debated at a Congressional hearing this week.

They were not finally answered. Opinions were expressed by the witnesses, who included three atheists, two Catholic priests, one Protestant minister and a rabbi.

Background of the Dispute Here is the background of the dispute: the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) is required by law to see that radio stations are operated "in the public interest." The FCC ruled long ago that a radio station owner must not ophis own views, and must permit the burn, Pa., last Saturday. airing of both sides of controversial public issues. The FCC also has stated that broadcasting of religious programs is "in the public interest." Three years ago, an atheist, Robert Harold Scott, of Palo Alto, Calif .. asked the FCC to revoke the licenses they refused to give or sell him radio time for talks about atheism. The station owners replied that the question is not a controversial one. at least in the usual sense, and it certainly would not be in the public interest to allow atheistic teachings to enter people's homes.

Cite "Rigid Policy" 1946 the commission turned down Scott's request to revoke the three licenses, saying it saw "no pared from mineral kieserite. urgent ground" to single out those stations rather than "many others." But the commission accompanied its decision with a vigorous discussion of freedom of speech and freedom

The main conclusion appeared to

That a broadcaster has no right to follow a "rigid policy" of denying radio time to the holders of a belief solely because they are few in number, or because their views are un-

"Equal Time" Not Required The Scott case opinion caused a stir in the radio industry. Many people were puzzled as to whether it meant the industry must grant time to atheists, and if so, how often. This year the matter came to a head when another atheist demanded time on a Rochester, N. Y., radio station.

A special House committee headed by Rep. Harness (R.-Ind.) took two days of testimony concerning the Scott opinion.

FCC officials testified that the opinion did not mean atheists should be given "equal" time to answer al religious programs. They said all it meant was that a broadcaster cannot adopt an "absolute rule' which prevents expression of a point of view merely because the broadcaster doesn't agree with it.

Report Effects Of Heat Wave On Crops

Harrisburg, Sept. 2 (A) - Pennsylvania's recent sizzling temperatures matured some fruit too rapidly but aided tomato, corn and potate crops. The State Agriculture department said the year's hottest week, with temperatures running 11 degrees above normal, produced these effects on the farm front:

Favored the harvesting of hay and grains and incited rapid growth of corn, tobacco and potatoes, while breaking tomato blight.

Matured fruits too rapidly, bringing peaches on with a rush and making the harvest season relatively short. Apples also ripened fast with Staymans cracking badly and scab reported in many orchards.

ISOTOPE IS NEW New Oxford own, aided considerably by favor-word going around: "Isotope."

It is pronounced "Ice-o-tope."

It is not a new word to scientists. But it is new to most people. Most of us didn't hear the word until ents and friends, congregated in the after the atomic bombs were dropped on Japan.

Isotopes some day will be as much dren, in honor of the Holy Ghost, a part of your conversation as was celebrated by the Rev. Robert X-rays. You will be hearing about D. Hartnett, pastor. Older children to another. Isotopes the rest of your life. Iso- of the parish who attend the Delone topes may even save your life.

What then is an Isotope? A Form of An Element First let's remind ourselves that everything-the air, dirt, rocks, water, trees, and our own bodies-is made up of elements. Elements are things like oxygen, mixture of oxygen and hydrogen. Ordinary table salt is a mixture of sodium and chlorine. Blood is a mixture of many elements.

An Isotope is a form of an element that behaves exactly like other forms of the same element-chemically speaking-but at the same time is different from them. One big difference is in weight.

96 Elements, 800 Isotopes

There are 96 elements that we know of. These elements have more than 800 Isotopes. For example, the element carbon has five Isotopes-a sort of "carbon family."

A chunk of carbon-say your pencil point-contains two Isotopes of carbon. These two Isotopes, having different weights and called "C-12" and "C-13," exist together in all carbon as it occurs in natural form.

Besides these two natural Isotopes of carbon, scientists have discovered how to make three others, which quickly to the gland, where its rays they call "C-10," "C-11," and "C-14."
